Everything about a person can be said to belong to a certain category of people, or a relatively small number of people who can be classified into a category, for example, athletes. The degree of complexity of the human psyche is determined by the following factors. First, it is customary to distinguish four criteria of complexity: 1) regulatory complexity; 2) operational complexity; 3) research complexity; secondly, the mental functions of a person are classified in accordance with scientific directions: 4) cognitive complexity; mental complexity; 5) communicative complexity. The presence of at least one of the cases of classification of the human psyche indicates that, although he, of course, is interesting to us in his appearance, but in general - not what he is interesting to us. And then it only remains to guess what might be interesting to them in the eyes of another person. A narrow specialization is always accompanied by a feeling of loneliness. In some cases, these feelings can stimulate the development of science. Cognition of the world is also connected with the complexity of cognition itself. The deeper a person's understanding of the surrounding world, the higher his cognitive activity. Thinking is considered the most productive formation in the process of cognition. And, of course, thinking is a product of activity. Variety of thought patterns, of course
