How to choose? With such a vast number of USB flash drives under the spotlight, does it not matter which one to pick? Consider the following list of things to look for when making a USB flash drive purchase. What is the brand and model number of the USB drive? Does it have a unique identifier, such as a product number and serial number? What is the size of the drive? Knowing what these terms mean will be crucial in choosing a perfect flash drive. Brand name is used to identify a company and you will find, for example, iPod, Playstation, Sony and Mac for well-known brands. When making a USB flash drive purchase, be sure to take note of these terms in order to get an extremely good value. What is the capacity of the USB flash drive? The capacity refers to the space in bytes. Your device can hold as many as 8GB of data if it has enough space on the drive. You may ask yourself a question: What kind of data would I want to store on the USB flash drive? Reading your entire computer files, music, movies and other data (including game saves and other binary files) will require a sufficient capacity. Theoretically speaking, you can pack several times the amount of data you need by using a single USB flash drive, but remember, you can only use this data if you have a Windows-compatible computer. Does it support SD/SDHC/SDXC? These are words you might come across when you are looking for a USB flash drive. What the words mean is you can use this device to store data that has the same size as a regular memory card. Although such flash drives look similar to any other USB drive, they are not the same. USB flash drives with SD/SDHC/SDXC support may have larger storage space and therefore better compatibility when it comes to files such as photos, music, and videos. What is the read speed? A read speed is measured in MB/sec. A USB flash drive with a read speed of 4 to 6 MB/sec will perform better than a USB flash drive with a slow read speed. The speed of the USB drive means that it can download/upload files faster. What is the write speed? A write speed is measured in

MB/sec. A USB flash drive with a write speed of 4 to 6 MB/sec will perform better than a USB flash drive with a

Rating system, I took the 8am hearing to the Otter Crest Golf Course to represent the acoustical interests and concern of residents in Calistoga. However, everyone has busy lives and taking time off for something as routine as a hearing is difficult. Nevertheless, everyone I asked had their hearing boosted by the quiet morning. With my luck it wasn't this 'silent' one. The Americans With Disabilities Act requires restaurants and some other businesses to have quiet rooms or 'quiet zones' when fully occupied. Sonoma County operates under the quiet zone laws and it's clear that this makes restaurant life complicated. Those affected can request a quiet zone in front of their windows, but as this is the only measure that can be taken, the only question is where should the request be made? I requested a quiet zone in front of a local 'L' shaped building in downtown Sonoma. The building is located next to the post office and across the street from the Food Depot. According to their sign, the Food Depot is owned by the Otter Crest Golf Course, a golf course that is currently under construction. I requested a quiet zone in front of the Otter Crest golf course because there is no commercial activity on the golf course. The County had the decision made and another venue had made the request so the decision needed to be acted on. The Otter Crest Golf Club had to make the decision on where to place the request and to place the request, it was required by law that the Otter Crest Golf Club owners had to be notified.

The Otter Crest Golf Club owners were notified and sent out an invoice to the county. On February 3, I brought the invoice to the Otter Crest Golf Course to discuss the charges. The invoice from the county had a company name and address listed. That address was the Otter Crest Golf Course office at the property owner's
