Huntington, W.Va. - Although details about the supposed "Winter Storm Lizzie" didn't change all that much between the National Weather Service's first and final forecasts for the storm, some scattered trees around the downtown area did need to be removed as a result of the stormy weather system. Although the storm is being described by some as a "winter storm," it is said to be more of a "winter weekend storm" as there are still some patches of snow on the ground. The snow, however, has started to melt on its own and has turned to a sloppy mix of water and snow that still fall onto the ground. "Winter Storm Lizzie" is said to be affecting the Huntington area right now. The National Weather Service upgraded the Winter Storm Lizzie weather alert to a winter weather advisory at approximately 6 p.m. and downgraded it to a winter storm warning from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Friday. The watch was discontinued at 7 p.m. The National Weather Service also issued a winter weather advisory from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday. That was downgraded to a winter storm warning from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m
